EPISODIC BREAKDOWN

1. Wild Family Affair

When it comes to looking after the young the females have always had priority – and responsibility – but sometimes the roles are reversed and dad does the job. Sometimes he even gives birth himself! We look at the role that mother, dad, and sometimes even the entire family play in the life of some baby animals.

2. Steps in the Wild

In every baby's life there comes a time when the lure of the outside world becomes too attractive to resist. This lure for independence begins a new phase, whether learning to walk, to hunt, or to mate. For these adolescents these first steps in the wild are perhaps the most important they will ever take, and will mould their future.

3. On Their Wild Way

For all living creatures the most important period of their lives is gaining independence. For most of these young animals this urge is driven by an internal force to procreate and before this is possible they must find a mate. On their wild way is the story of how some animals finally break that invisible bond and venture out into the unknown.
