Top ufologist Antonio Huneeus takes Shaun to see a massive alien-like geoglyph, the Atacama Giant, in Chile's Atacama Desert; some believe it was built in homage to visitors from space. In search of a more academic approach he speaks to Claudio Maccone, the Chair of SETI, a research institute that use cutting edge technology in an attempt to communicate with life in other galaxies. Finally Shaun meets a man from Sutton Coldfield who says he was abducted by aliens in his back garden, and chats with a Sociologist and a clinical Psychologist about the psychological effect of such encounters.
